

In this bravely honest book, doctor, psychologist and veteran fell running champion Julie Carter reveals how to master the art of approaching life's Red Lines. Extending the edges of our capabilities in the quest to live a fulfilling life.

"Five stars! A gripping and fascinating insight into the psychology of performing in sport. A highly recommended finalist. Insightful not only for sports people but for anyone interested in physical and mental strength."

The Wishing Shelf Independent Book Awards

"Fascinating, full of helpful insights, often profound"

Richard Askwith, Author of 'Feet in the Clouds'

"Very enjoyable, an emotional journey, beautifully written."

Steve Birkinshaw, Record-Breaking Mountain Runner and Author of 'There Is No Map in Hell'

"Brilliantly insightful and useful. A beautiful evocation of the healing power of doing something you love, with people you love, in a place you belong to."

Professor John McCarthy, Psychologist, University of Cork, Ireland

"An extraordinary book. The author takes you on a journey during which she offers you so much of herself that you feel at once privileged and grateful to be invited along."

Professor Peter Wright, University of Newcastle, England

Memoir/Sport

£12.99

ISBN 978-1-9999554-4-1

9 781999 955441 >

www.mindfell.co.uk

RUNNING the RED LINE

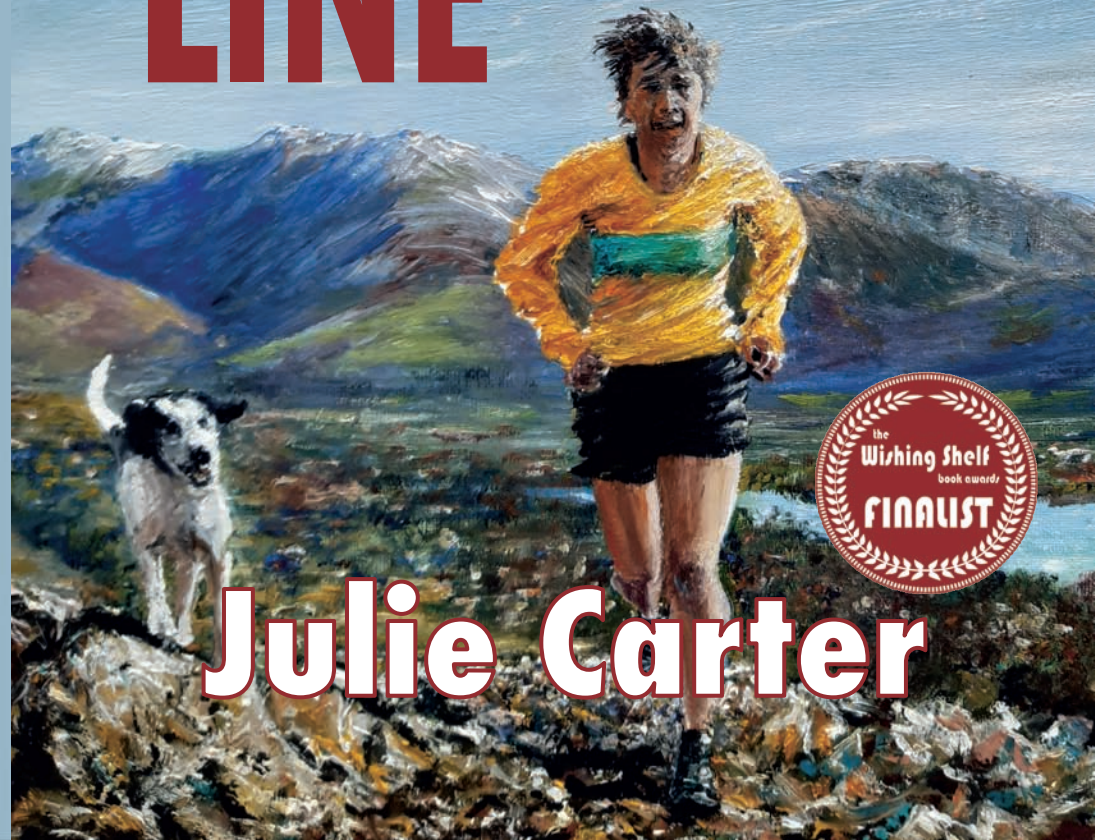

Julie Carter

Mindfell

"EMOTIONAL, HEART WARMING and THOUGHT PROVOKING"

DAME KELLY HOMES

RUNNING the RED LINE

Julie Carter